Made with Love: Dan's Po-boys and Seafood Celebrates Eighth Anniversary

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE

Editor's Note: The Daily Grind is a monthly feature of the Sea Coast Echo focusing on small businesses in Hancock County.

"Food is a language of love," Dan Douglass, owner of Dan's Poboy's and Seafood in Diamondhead, said. "The amount of passion and time that you put into something to give to somebody that you care about, that's love."

The Diamondhead favorite recently celebrated its eighth anniversary.

Douglass, 37, was born in Seoul, South Korea, but moved to South Mississippi when he was adopted by Allen and Mary at three months old. He grew up in Pearl River County.

Douglass said his love for cooking began while watching his father grill.

"But, also being in the kitchen with him when he would fry steak, make mashed potatoes and gravy or rice," he said. "Those are the kind of things I just remember the most."

His mother, who was a schoolteacher for 29 years, would also come home and cook a lot, he said.

"I would watch her cook or I would cook," he said. "My grandmother, same way, just always cooked. Just being around the women of your family, the aunts, the grandmas, being around my dad, uncles that grilled."

Then it got to the point, Douglass said, that he started doing more cooking on his own.

"More experimental stuff or things that I'd seen and try to replicate," he said. "And then I started cooking and then those cooking duties sort of fell on me." Initially, Douglass said, he was in nursing school.

"My first wife passed away and I did not want to continue that," he said. "I actually decided to change career paths."

He asked a friend who worked in the restaurant industry in Orange Grove if they needed a cook.

"And, he said 'absolutely,'" Douglass said. "So, I started working with him and I took his store and did about $60,000 to $70,000 profit in 40 days."

Then a business partner of his friend asked Douglass to help him open a restaurant in Vancleave.

"We took that store in small Vancleave and made it about an $1,800

Class resumes in Hancock, Bay-Waveland school districts

NBE Principal Crystal Anderson speaks to staff during convocation.

It's back to school time in Hancock County — both the Bay-Waveland and Hancock County school districts resumed classes on Wednesday — and administrators, faculty and staff were busy last week getting ready for a brand new year.

The Bay-Waveland district hosted a "convocation" at Bay High School last Friday with the theme "One team, one dream, one goal!"

"Your career is what you're paid for, your calling is what you're made for," North Bay Elementary Principal Crystal Anderson told her fellow educators at the convocation, "and isn't it a blessing we get to do both."

Anderson said that when she was a very young first-year teacher in another school district, she was highly-motivated and set on being the best teacher she could be — "I want to make a difference," she said she told a mentor teacher at the time.

But she learned that "It isn't about you, it's about them," the students.

"Having all the money in the world doesn't answer all the questions," Anderson said,

Grand jury finds insufficient evidence to indict former deputy in fatal shooting

ECHO STAFF

A Hancock County grand jury has determined there was insufficient evidence to indict former Hancock Deputy Michael Chase Blackwell in the December 2022 fatal shooting of 21-year-old Florida college student Isaiah Winkley.

"The Office of the Attorney General completed its review into the December 10, 2022, incident involving an officer-involved shooting in Hancock County and presented it to the Hancock County grand jury last week," according to a statement from AG Lynn Fitch's office. "The grand jury reported that it found no criminal conduct on behalf of the officer involved."

"As such, no further criminal action will be taken by this Office in this matter. Pursuant to Section 45-1-6 of the Mississippi Code, review by the Office of the Attorney General and the subsequent presentation to the Hancock County grand jury followed an investigation by the Mississippi Bureau of Investigation."

In March, federal officials accepted a "no-prosecution" agreement with Blackwell in exchange for him turning in his credentials and agreeing to never serve as a law enforcement officer again, anywhere in the U.S.

Blackwell may still face civil liability in the case.

Winkley's family filed a wrongful death suit in August 2023, naming Blackwell, Sheriff Ricky Adam and five other defendants listed as "John Doe 1-5" in the suit. Brandon, Miss. attorney Lance Stevens — representing Winkley's parents, Rev. Dwight Winkley and Catherine Winkley — filed the suit in U.S. District

Bay residents discover family connected to 90-year-old quilt

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

Last month, Bay St. Louis residents Mary Serfelis and Tara Godbold rehomed a nearly 90-year-old quilt with family.

Serfelis found the quilt at a yard sale in Long Beach in 2021.

“It was not there with a nice, neat stack of beautiful quilts,” she said. “It was mixed in with old sheets and bath towels. The lady running the sale said she knew nothing about it. She was cleaning out her sister’s house and had never seen the quilt before.”

Serfelis said she didn’t know why she was drawn to the quilt.

“When I touched this quilt, it just spoke to me,” she said. “It was something special. And I knew this was very old, and I thought, it was a family piece. And I thought I would take it home, find the family name and see if they wanted it, but I wasn’t going to let it go to Goodwill or the trash. So, I gave her $5 for it.”

It wasn’t until a few years later that Serfelis revisited the quilt.

“I took a few pictures and put them on Facebook with a description and plea for help if anyone recognized a name,” Serfelis said. “My friend and neighbor, Tara, is a hobby genealogist with a network of genealogy friends and she joined the search within minutes of my post.”

Godbold said Serfelis is a good friend and neighbor.

“She posted on Facebook that she found this quilt at a yard sale and wanted to find its family or owner,” she said. “And I do genealogy as a hobby.”

Godbold said her interests in genealogy began with her search for her own biological parents, as she was adopted.

She said she is a member of several Mississippi genealogy research groups.

Within 48 hours, Serfelis said, “the mystery was solved.”

“From what we pieced together from everything we were told and found out in our research, this quilt was constructed of names of people who lived and worshipped in the northeast quadrant of Mississippi on a Methodist Episcopal Church circuit in Mississippi in 1938,” Serfelis said.

Serfelis said they hypothesized the quilt was made as a gift for the pastor at the time, whose name was sewn into the middle of the quilt. There are about 179 names hand sewn in cursive on the quilt, she said, which were their signatures.

“We had issues reading the pastor’s name, so I shared it on the Mississippi Genealogy Research group and within 12 hours, Mary had 70 responses, I had tons of responses” she said. “Everyone was trying to help us piece together the church’s name and the pastor’s name. They were seeing family member’s names. Once we identified the pastor, Steve recognized that he was connected to someone that shared Mary’s post and he reached out to her, and said ‘oh, I recognize my family.’ It just took off from there.”

The pastor was identified as Rev. Jesse Mark Guinn, Serfelis said, who rode the circuit of community churches prior to the 1939 consolidation of the Methodist churches. They also found his name listed in the Journal North Mississippi Conference of the Methodist Church 1948.

Godbold was able to find Guinn’s obituary, which provided a small clue as to how the quilt ended up in Long Beach.

“According to Pastor Guinn’s obituary, he died at the veteran’s hospital in Gulfport,” she said. “Somehow, this quilt became part of a Long Beach woman’s quilt collection.”

However, how it ended up in the woman’s collection remains a mystery.

According to Guinn’s obituary, he served churches in the North Mississippi Conference for about 40 years before his retirement in 1950. He also served two years as a chaplain in France and Germany during World War I. He was 77 at the time of his death.

“Born in Van Vleet, he was the son of the late Rev. J.L. and Frances Ulmer Guinn,” his obituary states. “He was a graduate of Millsaps College at Jackson and Emory University at Atlanta. Following in his father’s footsteps, he began his ministry in 1910. After his retirement, he served two years as a supply minister before moving to Okolona in 1952. He was a Mason and member of the Eastern Star. He leaves his brother Dr. E. K. Guinn of Okolona and two sisters, Mrs. W.C. Flaherty of Memphis and Mrs. J.J. Byars of Houston, Miss.”

Serfelis said small groups of people have their names on the quilt. “Each connected group seems to be from a different community and of families in those communities,” she said.

Godbold said she was able to look up some of the people because she has subscriptions to several genealogy sites such as Newspapers, Ancestry, Find A Grave, etc.

Steve Latham said a friend of his alerted him to Serferlis’ Facebook post about the quilt.

“He sent it to us because he recognized our grandparents’ names, Latham,” he said. “My granddad, CW Latham, my grandmother Ora Belle and my dad and my aunt all signed that thing. And so did my great-grandmother, Isola Lamb.”

Latham’s friend also sent a copy of the post to Latham’s cousin, Debbie White.

“I contacted Mrs. Mary and from then we just talked about who was on there and what do we know,” he said. “Once we understood it was Preacher Guinn, I knew who they were talking about then. Preacher Guinn was one of my granddad’s friends.”

Latham described the experience as “unbelievable.”

Serfelis said Latham relayed several stories about his grandmother and they also began corresponding via email.

White, Latham’s cousin, also wrote that the names corresponded to the Tomnolen Methodist Church and said the quilt might have been a going-away gift for Rev. Guinn.

Latham, via email, told Serfelis that he remembered his grandfather telling stories about Rev. Guinn.

“Our family was closely associated with Preacher Guinn,” Latham wrote. “I have my granddad’s old shotgun that was purchased from Preacher Guinn. Debbie remembers our grandparents talking about Preacher Guinn staying at their house frequently, even after he left Tomnolen.”

Latham said all the family names he recognized sewn onto the quilt

Conservation Corner: Be Careful in the Heat!

For most of us living in the South, summertime means the kind of heat that you “can fry an egg on the sidewalk,” as many of us have heard throughout the years. While we might be used to managing heat extremes, it is important to know what to do for yourself or someone else should the heat creep up on you.

While our bodies are always working to regulate our temperature, under certain conditions, it just can't keep up. Most heat disorders occur because the victim has been overexposed to heat or has over-exercised for his or her age and physical condition.

Heat-induced illnesses are broken down into three levels from the mildest to the most severe. Early intervention is key to preventing progression.

Heat Cramps – the earliest sign of heat illness. These are caused by a loss of salt in the body due to excessive perspiration. The characteristic symptoms include painful, involuntary muscle spasms usually in the legs, arms, abdomen, and back. These are usually accompanied by heavy perspiration and weakness/lightheadedness. If ignored, this may progress to:

Heat Exhaustion – this level renders a person faint and nauseated. Other symptoms include extreme thirst, acting irrationally, dilated pupils, and excessive sweat—even though the skin is cool to the touch, these should serve as a warning that your body is no longer able to cool itself. If ignored, a life-threatening condition may ensue.

Heat Stroke – also known as sunstroke, is the most severe form of heat illness. This level may result in shock, brain damage, or even death. Fainting may be the first sign, along with a body temperature greater than 104° F, changes in behavior, delirium, and dry, flushed skin void of sweat despite the heat.

There are many things to consider if hot weather is forecasted, such as: staying indoors as much as possible, eat well-balanced, light, regular meals with little added salt, avoid alcoholic or caffeinated beverages as they can contribute to dehydration, dress in lightweight, loose-fitting clothing, avoid working or strenuous activity during the hottest part of the day, and take care to stay hydrated.

Hancock History: Top Gun

During the Vietnam War the United States Air Force (USAF) participated in air combat over North Vietnam from 1965-1972. Flight Surgeon Captain James Keating was not deployed to Vietnam during his service from 1971-1973.

Keating was stationed at Dover AFB in Delaware attached to the 95th Fighter Interceptor Squadron where he flew in the “back seat” of the F-106 “Delta Dart” Fighter Jet and the T-33 “T-Bird.” His service with the twenty-five fighter pilots and conversations with fighter pilots after the war provided valuable The USAF during the Vietnam War suffered from competition and rivalry between the Strategic Air Command (SAC) and the Tactical Air Command (TAC) for resources, strategy, and tactics. Fighter pilot training before and during the war subpar and suffered because of the SAC (bombers) culture of “flight safety” in pilot training rather than honing skills to fly high performance jets crucial to air-air combat in a dogfight. The TAC (fighter jets) abandoned the classic role of tactical air power, air-to-air combat, and conventional weapons (machine guns). It was believed that old fashioned dogfights were obsolete, and in future encounters enemy planes would duel with only long-range guided missiles. Consequently, the F-4 Fighter Jets had their original cannons (machine guns) replaced with “Sidewinder” air-to-air missiles.

North Vietnam's MiG-17's were small and more maneuverable than American F-4's and proved more difficult than the Air Force and Navy expected.

The “Sidewinder” missiles did not have a “Pk” (probability to kill) ratio in a “turn and burn” encounter in a dogfight of any better than 10%. Accordingly, Air Force crews were forced to innovate for their combat pilots and mount machine guns on the F-4's. This resulted immediately in shooting down of several MiG's which fortunately resulted in the USAF approving the modification.

The Navy established the Fighter Weapons School (Top Gun) in 1969. It was not until after the war in 1974 that the USAF decided to retrain all their fighter pilots in air-to-air combat tactics or dogfight. The 95th Fighter Interceptor Squadron was transferred to Tyndall AFB in Florida to support this training program. These pilots had great skills and experience in the “Delta Darts” and the “T-Birds” that made excellent mock MiG opponents in training dogfights for other F-4 fighter pilots and new recruits.

An excellent history of this subject is Colonel Marshall Michel's book, “Clashes: Air Combat Over North Vietnam 1965-1972.” Michel was a F-4 fighter pilot during the Vietnam War who flew 321 combat missions over North Vietnam and Laos. Michel currently resides in Biloxi, Mississippi.

An Unprecedented Supreme Court Decision

Two years ago, Mississippi was at the center of one of the Supreme Court's most consequential decisions: Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization, a landmark case that ultimately overturned Roe v. Wade. It was hard to miss the coverage, which is ongoing even today.

But there's another Supreme Court case that was recently handed down that didn't get as much coverage. Mississippi wasn't part of the case this time, but the impact on our state – and our nation – will be profound. This decision overturned a 1984 case called Chevron v. Natural Resources Defense Council, which gave largely unmitigated power to federal bureaucrats.

The Chevron case

empowered federal agencies to interpret and administer laws as they saw fit. In other words, if they weren't sure what Congress was saying in the legislation, bureaucrats had the power to fill in the blanks. This gave those unelected individuals a tremendous amount of power.

Over the last 40 years, unaccountable federal officials have used that power liberally, handing down expansive environmental regulations, labor laws, and even student loan bailouts. The overreach has cost taxpayers dearly, especially when one considers the opportunities forfeited to politically driven federal determinations.

The 1984 decision undermined the separation of powers and the Founding Fathers' ingenious governmental design. Fortunately, this June's decision (led by Trump-appointed Supreme Court Justices) returned equilibrium to our government. By overturning Chevron, the Legislative Branch is once again the solo authors of our laws; the Judicial Branch regains its authority to interpret those laws; and the Executive Branch is limited to simply implementing the laws, as Congress wrote them.

This decision hasn't gotten the press attention that Dobbs did, but its impact on our world is no less profound. I believe wholeheartedly in a limited federal government, and by overturning Chevron, the Supreme Court rightfully delivered just that.

Court, Southern District of Mississippi, in Gulfport.
Although Blackwell had argued that he had “qualified immunity” in the case because he was acting to stop an “immediate” threat to the his safety and that of two other deputies, but U.S. District Judge Louis Guirola ruled that Blackwell is not “immune” to civil liability in the case.
Guirola reviewed camera footage from the incident and determined that there were “material questions of fact whether Officer Blackwell faced an immediate threat of death or bodily injury” when the shooting occurred, according to the ruling.
The family notified the sheriff’s office in May 2023 of its intention to sue for wrongful death.
Blackwell, resigned from the sheriff’s office effective May 24, 2023.
The “Hancock County Sheriff’s (Office) was responding to a burglary call near 28030 Hwy. 603 in Kiln (on Dec. 10) ... around 7:30 a.m.,” according to a Mississippi Bureau of Investigation press release issued after the shooting. “When on scene, shots were fired and the subject did receive fatal injuries. The officer received no injuries.”

“Upon arrival, deputies made contact with the individual who had apparently burglarized the residence,” according to a press release from Adam at the time. “After a confrontation, officers utilized lethal force, resulting in the death of an individual on scene. Involved officers received minor injuries during the encounter. In accordance with department policy, investigators from the Mississippi Bureau of Investigations are leading the investigation. The identity of involved individuals is deferred at this time. ... Our agency will be fully cooperative with the investigation being conducted by the Mississippi Bureau of Investigations.”

According to the lawsuit, the “facts” of the case are that, on Dec. 10, 2022, at around 6:30 a.m., Isaiah Winkley “was traveling in or near Perkinston, Miss., on St. Matthew Church Road, in front of St. Matthew the Apostle Church, near the intersection of Hwy. 603, when his vehicle apparently left the road, quite slightly, and became stuck in mud. Isaiah began to walk down that road, in those early morning hours, looking for help. By all appearances, he happened upon an unoccupied residence searching for means to rescue. A witness saw Isaiah on the porch of the residence with a come-along, a hand-operated winch with a ratchet used to pull objects that are stuck.
“At around 7:20 a.m. that same day, at least three officers or deputies of the Hancock County Sheriff’s Office were called to and did arrive at the residence ..., based upon an alleged report of a possible burglary at that home.”

The suit says the “deputies approached Isaiah Winkley, a person believed to be a trespasser on the subject property, who was a 21-year-old senior at Pensacola Christian College at the time, with guns drawn. Isaiah is not believed to have any criminal history whatsoever nor did he possess or own a firearm. At all relevant times, Isaiah’s hands were visible to the officers.
“Isaiah, a gangly young man, presented no immediate threat to the deputies or others, either with his physical movements or in his language. Deputies had not witnessed any act by Isaiah which could be mistaken as violent or threatening.”

Video footage of the incident shows Winkley holding a metal post in one hand and a pack of candy in the other, and told deputies to “shoot” him. One of the deputies used a Taser on him, but he kept walking toward them.
The suit says Isaiah had no drugs or alcohol in his system and was no closer than 20-25 feet from the officers, flanked by two deputies with another in front of him, “all with guns drawn.”
Guirola said in his ruling that “officers must make split-second decisions in extremely stressful circumstances and that those officers do not have the ability to rewind and replay a video, like the court does, prior to acting.”
The suit claims the “lethal force used by the deputy(ies) was clearly excessive, constituted a reckless disregard for Isaiah’s safety and welfare and constituted a severe deprivation of Isaiah’s civil rights and liberties under the Fourth and Fourteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution,” and that the “deadly force used by defendants against Isaiah was unjustified and objectively unreasonable under any circumstances.”

The suit claims that Hancock County is liable to the wrongful death beneficiaries up to the $500,000 statutory damage cap set by state law. It also seeks damages that “include, but are not necessarily limited to, all funeral and burial costs, all medical expenses arising from Isaiah’s shooting, all pain and mental anguish caused by Isaiah’s death, all past and future loss of support, all past and future loss of companionship and society and the net present value of Isaiah’s reasonably anticipated loss of earnings over his lifetime.” It also seeks all costs and attorney fees and court costs.

Should you experience any of the symptoms or witness someone dealing with any of the symptoms of heat illness, act quickly. Have the person rest in a cool, shaded area if no air conditioning is available, give an electrolyte drink, and pour water over the head. If any sign of heat-stroke, don’t hesitate to call for emergency medical care.

Before planning a day outside, check not only the projected temperature highs, but also the forecasted heat index (a measure of how hot it feels when relative humidity is combined with the effects of the ambient temperature). Remember, exposure to full sun can increase the heat index by 15 degrees. A heat index of 90 or above is dangerous and special measures should be taken to stay cool and hydrated.

She is survived by her son Matthew Clifton Gresham of New Orleans, sister Virginia Waynette Glade of New Orleans, sister-in-law Susie Acklin Storey of Longview, Texas, nephew Henry Brinson Glade and wife Danielle of Austin, Texas, nieces Rose Glade of New Orleans, Lisa Glade Schoolfield and husband Bruce of Houston, Texas, Ronda Gresham Vanderwal and husband Jan of Longview, Texas, and Mary Gresham Wyatt and husband Stephen from Blanchard, La. She is also survived by grand-nieces and nephews: Amy Vanderwal Nagy and husband Mike of Dripping Springs, Texas, Haley Vanderwal Jones and husband Garrett of Houston, Texas, Trey Norred and wife Ashley of Monroe, La., Leigh Norred Jackson of Southlake, Texas, Mary Schoolfield of Seattle, Washington, Lucy Schoolfield of Houston, Texas, Mattie Dickson of Blanchard, La., Adam Pardue and wife Sommer of Jonesboro, La., and 11 great nieces and nephews. She is also survived by her beloved rescue dog and companion Lucy.

She was preceded in death by her high school sweetheart and husband Henry Clifton Gresham, her parents Edgar Wayne and Mary Virginia Brinson of Jonesboro-Hodge, La., her father-in-law and mother-in-law Melvin and Mary Bell Gresham of Winnfield, La., brother-in-law Ronnie Gresham of Winnfield, La., brother-in-law Henry Bernard Glade of New Orleans and niece Vicki Pardue of Jonesboro, La.

Born Dec. 26, 1942, Mrs. Gresham graduated from Jonesboro-Hodge High School and Louisiana Tech University, where she was a member of Sigma Kappa Sorority and graduated with honors. She began her teaching career at LaGrange High School in Lake Charles, La., before her marriage. She followed her husband to teaching stops in Rome, Ga., back to Ruston, La., and to Starkville, Miss., where he earned a doctorate degree in finance from Mississippi State University. She later earned a Master of Education Degree from Nicholls State University in 1978. A retired associate professor of English literature at Nicholls State, she shared her passion for literature and southern writers with colleagues, students, friends, and students who became friends. She taught alongside her husband, who served as a professor of finance and director of graduate studies in the College of Business at Nicholls State, until his sudden passing on November 7, 1981.

Following her husband's death, Ann ensured her son never missed a fishing or hunting trip, even buying him a Skeeter bass boat when he was 14. She was always ready for a road trip and began nearly everyone by singing "On the Road Again" by Willie Nelson. She was fiercely independent, yet always put her loved ones' needs above her own. She had a deep appreciation for the Mississippi Gulf Coast, purchasing her "coast house" in Waveland in 1991. Following Hurricane Katrina, she was adamant the Mississippi Coast would rebuild and her home was one of the first to be rebuilt in the neighborhood. In 2015, she moved full-time to Diamondhead, keeping her "happy place" just 20 minutes away. Ann was an avid gardener and kept a pristine backyard full of lilies, azaleas, roses, and bulbs, among other beautiful flowers. She also enjoyed antiquing, libraries, bookstores, museums, art galleries, games, and weekly coffee nights with her many friends.

A celebration of her life will be held at the Main Street United Methodist Church, 162 Main Street, Bay St. Louis, on Friday, August 9. Visitation will be at 1 p.m. with services at 2 p.m. A reception will follow. In lieu of flowers, donations can be made in her name to Southern Animal Foundation, 1823 Magazine Street, New Orleans, La. 70130, or by visiting www.southernanimalfoundation.org.

Diversity

By REV. C. GERALD RICHARDSON, D. MIN

C. Gerald Richardson, D. MIN.

A recent reading of the book, The Demon of Unrest, by Erik Larson was not only a valuable lesson in history, but it was also a reminder of one of the most unfortunate and painful periods in our American story. The book chronicles the events which led to the firing on Fort Sumter in Charleston Harbor which is usually considered the start of the Civil War. Of course, the unrest and hostility had been going on for quite some time before the actual cannons were fired. The primary issue was the practice of slavery. For many years the planters (mostly cotton farmers) in the southern part of the United States had grown wealthy through the use of slave labor. Enslaved people, who were brought to this country from Africa, provided the primary work force for the planting, tending, and harvesting of cotton. This crop was sold all across the country and in several other countries as well. It was a lucrative enterprise which created enormous fortunes for many people. The issue of slavery was a point of great contention. Attitudes about the immorality of the practice were countered by arguments claiming that African people were less than human. Religious and spiritual concerns, which were very real, were countered by practical arguments that the economy of the region was dependent upon things remaining as they were. It was a terrible time of dissension in the nation. Families were torn apart. Friendships were fractured.

Lives were in upheaval. The national conscience was challenged in ways that had never been the case before. We now know that the fabric of the entire nation was ripped apart over the issues of the war which eventually cost over 750,000 lives, with countless more injured. In the end, the war was a spiritual issue, as most such conflicts are. As I read the book, I could not help but reflect on the current situation in which we find ourselves. Great divisions exist within our people. Once again families and friendships are challenged. Values are questioned, and we are called upon to examine ourselves, our motives, our convictions, and the principals upon which we build our lives. Hopefully, we can emerge with outcomes which are more hopeful than that which was the case in the 1860's. As usual, the real issues are not truly political or even economic. The questions hinge upon social justice, fairness, equity, and the ways in which we decide to deal with those whose lives are in some way marginal. It is not essential that we always agree with each other. We are called by the "higher angels" of our moral lives to work for grace, charity, love, and hope. These are matters of the spirit. They do not call for doctrinal purity or for religious agreement. They do call for the recognition that we can hold individual opinions while valuing human dignity. This is not a one-way street. It is possible to recognize differences while embracing people. We live in a great country which possesses the gift of diversity. We have a constitution which blesses that diversity, and even celebrates it. We have not always embraced it totally, but we have found ways to live within it. My prayer for our country is that we hold to that heritage and learn to live according to its truth and encourage others to do the same. May God help us to do just that.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AD VALOREM TAX EFFORT

The Hancock County School District's proposed budget will include an increase that is estimated to result in no more than a 4.07 mill increase for operating purposes. The Hancock County School District is not requesting an increase based on a percentage of the tax base or any additional new property and is solely requesting the amount that represents the increase required for the new state funding formula.

NOTICE OF PROPOSED AD VALOREM TAX EFFORT HANCOCK COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT

The Hancock County School District will hold a public hearing on its proposed school district budget for fiscal year 2024-2025 on July 29, 2024 at 5:30 at the Superintendent Office, 18375 Hwy 603 Kiln, MS. At this meeting, a proposed ad valorem tax effort will be considered. The Hancock County School District is now operating with a projected total budget revenue of $63,499,798. Of that amount, 28.83 percent or $18,309,446 of such revenue is obtained through ad valorem taxes. For next fiscal year, the proposed budget has total projected revenue of $58,681,450. Of that amount, 34.49 percent or $20,239,635 is proposed to be financed through a total ad valorem tax levy. For the next fiscal year, the proposed increase in ad valorem tax effort by Hancock County School District may result in an increase in the ad valorem tax millage rate. Ad valorem taxes are paid on homes, automobile tags, business fixtures and equipment, and rental real property. Any citizen of Hancock County School District is invited to attend this public hearing on the proposed ad valorem tax effort, and will be allowed to speak for a reasonable amount of time and offer tangible evidence before any vote is taken.

FRESHMAN CLASS

BY SONNY SCHINDLER
CONTRIBUTING WRITER

I did not get to see my daughter Margot much this summer. Between my fishing schedule, her summer camps, the sleepovers, and all the adventures her and mama get into, it has been a busy couple of months. The start of her freshman year is right around the corner, and I wanted to do something fun before her high school experience begins. The planets aligned, and we were able to get my schedule to match her schedule. She always wants to bring some of her friends out on the boat, and that’s never been an issue for me. I’ve actually become a big fan of the group of girls she runs with. They are all well mannered and just fun be around. Three would be joining Me and Margot on this adventure.

We got just about perfect weather for our trip trip. The winds were light and variable, the pop-up storms pretty much left us alone, and the overcast skies kept the temperatures warm, but not miserable. My wife was nice enough to get most of the crew there bright and early. The girls jumped in the boat, and we were headed south, just as the sun was peeking out.

Sadie, Adalyn, Tallulah and Margot were wanting to catch sharks, but listening to the radio chatter, I pretty much forced the girls to go trout fishing first thing. I think we only had three lines out before the first croaker got mauled by a huge trout. All the girls caught several huge speckled trout. We did miss a few UFOs that almost spooled us, but all in all, the girls did fantastic. They took turns on whichever rod got hit first, and I honestly think they had more fun netting the fish than fighting them. We only kept about a dozen trout, and the girls were definitely ready to go the shark fishing.

Typically, I would drift through schools of ladyfish, but on the days you are looking for them, you never seem to find them. We opted to just soak baits in the deeper channels south of Pass Harbor. It didn’t take long before the sharks found our baits. I don’t really know who to give credit to, as all of the girls helped one another bring in the big sharks.

Since the girls are all about the photos, we put a black tip, and a bull shark in the boat for some incredible pictures. It was a little chaotic there for a minute, but we got it done. It was plenty of fish, a little Brittney spears and *NSYNC on the radio, plenty of cheers, and just a lot fun.

Once it got close to lunchtime, we pointed the boat north, back to the Pass Christian Harbor. I cleaned the fish, and Margot carried up a small bag of fillets to have cooked in the restaurant. We opted to get them fried and served as fish tacos. It was absolutely unbelievably delicious. What a day!

My girl and her wonderful friends are growing up way too fast, but these precious little memories are what seems to slow the clock down just a little bit. Margot, Tallulah, Sadie and Adalyn appear to be ready for whatever the world throws at them, especially high school. I just hope the world and high school are ready for them. Look out yall, here come the FRESHMAN!!!

SHUCKERS DELIVER 6-1 WIN OVER BLUE WAHOOS

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II
STAFF WRITER

The Biloxi Shuckers delivered a 6-1 win on the road against the Pensacola Blue Wahoos on Sunday evening to earn a split in the series and increase their lead in the Southern Division standings.

The Shuckers (47-47, 17-10) start the month of August atop the Southern League standings during the second half of the season.

Jacob Misiorowski started the game on the mound for Biloxi in dominant fashion hitting 100mph on the gun during the first inning.

The Milwaukee Brewers’ top pitching prospect threw three scoreless innings for the Shuckers before finding a seat in the dugout.

The Shuckers picked up a 2-0 lead over Pensacola in the fourth inning when Connor Scott drove in Dylan O’Rea with an RBI single and Brock Wilken scored on a wild pitch.

Pensacola cut the lead in half in the seventh inning with an RBI single to make the score 2-1.

In the ninth inning, Biloxi padded their lead with a bases loaded RBI single from Ernesto Martinez Jr., a RBI single from Xavier Warren, and a two-run single from Nick Kahle to make the final tally.

Connor Scott and Xavier Warren had a multi-hit game for the Shuckers.

The Shuckers return to Keesler Federal Park in Biloxi this week for a six-game series with the Rocket City Trash Pandas. First pitch tonight and Friday is set for 6:35 p.m., Saturday is 6:05 p.m., and Sunday is 5:05 p.m. The Shuckers will transform into the Biloxi King Cakes for Friday’s game and the Biloxi Beach Chickens on Saturday. average a day restaurant in tiny little Vancleave,” he said.

Douglass said he worked in Vancleave for about six months until his parents were injured in a car wreck. He left the restaurant business for about three months to care for his parents.

After that, Douglass said he was asked to return to the Orange Grove restaurant.

“Then at that time, my business partner said, ‘hey’ you want to open a restaurant in Diamondhead?” Douglass said. “And I said ‘sure.’”

They opened the restaurant under the O’Neal’s name on July 20, 2016, he said.

“Been here for eight years,” he said. “We had a name change, but same ownership and place for eight years,” he said.

Douglass said his menu is inspired by visits to New Orleans, Slidell and the Gulf Coast during his childhood.

“We would eat, we would try things,” he said. “Try a hole-in-the-wall here and come back the next day and try the one next to it. Being introduced to all those foods, I would say the food is kind of an homage to southern Cajun and just again, simple, meat and potatoes. We have something for everybody, but our po-boys, our hamburgers, it’s all fresh. We never use pre-made frozen patties, it’s all fresh hamburger meat. And everything’s hand-battered. We do the hard part because it works.”

Douglass said their most popular po-boys are the roast beef and shrimp.

“This is where we do diverge from classic New Orleans sliced roast beef,” he said. “We do a pot roast style shredded roast beef. To us, that style is more synonymous with Mississippi than New Orleans.”

Douglass said customers also love the hamburgers.

“They love that fresh burger instead of a frozen patty,” he said.

Other favorites include: Redfish Creole (blackened redfish over a bed of rice with crawfish etouffe spread on top); and shrimp tacos.

Douglass also has daily specials, which are geared towards those living on fixed incomes.

“For one, I always knew that I was in a retirement community, lot of fixed incomes, lot of pinchers,” he said.

Douglass said they like to keep a daily special that’s about $9 to $10, which can be found on the restaurant’s Facebook page.

“Food and cooking is love,” Douglass said. “To me, you can’t show your love of somebody without cooking a meal for them. Because you have to know what they like, you have to know what they dislike, you have to know what they hate and you have to know what kind of seasonings or taste profiles they like. So, to know all that, continually, I feel like you have to have some kind of love for that person to put into that meal. The meals have always been about love because you have to care about that person because you have to know them.”

In line with his philosophy on cooking, Douglass said, his customers have become like family.

“You know which ones don’t like mayonnaise, you know which ones don’t like tomatoes, you know which ones don’t like this seasoning, don’t like blackened, do like more lemon, do like less salt, do like more salt, you learn that about your people,” he said. “And it becomes so second-nature.”

Douglass said the restaurant owes its success to regular customers.

“Doing COVID, when restaurants closed, we stayed open the entire time,” he said. “We never took a break, except for when we were mandated to. Our business not only made it through COVID, we actually thrived through COVID just on our regular customers coming in and supporting us and I’ll forever be grateful for that. They kept our waitresses going. It was unbelievable, the amount of support they showed us. There was just an outpouring of love during that time.”

With that in mind, Douglass said, he also tries to find ways to give back to the community.

“We try to be somewhat of a focal point in our community to support not only the people with the fixed incomes, but kids and youth sports, any kind of things that we can support, when we can,” Douglass said. “We try to be that place for entry-level jobs for young people in school. I’ve taken people that have no cooking experience whatsoever and had them running the place later on. If you have a desire to learn to cook, it’s easy.”

Diamondhead firefighter Greg Allen said he has been a regular customer at Dan’s for at least the past four years. He added that he patronizes the restaurant about three times a week.

“The food is awesome,” he said. “It’s always hot, it’s always fresh, it’s always on point. The service is great.”

Allen said his favorite menu item is “The Big Cheese,” a double-patty hamburger with four different types of cheese, typically paired with a sourdough bun. However, Allen said, he typically substitutes for a regular bun.

“There’s nothing bad on the menu,” Allen said. “I have never had a a week because he felt “that there needed to be not only an affordable, but a good place to eat at all times.”

“I always said that one, bills don’t stop,” he said. “But also, two, people need a place that they can depend on to be open to serve them food when they need it and when they want it.”

bad meal here ever. He’s (Dan) straight up. He’s as cut-and-dry as they come. He’s honest, he puts out a good product, and takes care of his customers.”

Douglass said his late father was one of the restaurant’s biggest fans.

“He always said he was proud of the establishment that I had made, the business I’d built,” he said. “He was one of the people that pushed me to do it. My mother is still living and she still supports me, too, and my brother Chris.”

Douglass has been married to Heather since Oct. 16, 2021. They have a daughter together named Sunnhi, who will turn one in September.

Douglass has a stepdaughter named Marleigh.

“She (Marleigh) was the first daughter I had,” he said. “She’s who made me a parent. One chapter ended in my story, but the next chapter has started to be written.”

Even after a long day at work, Douglass said, if his daughters ask him to make them something to eat, he always does.

MEET MERRITT AND MOOSE.

These stunning fellas were abandoned by their owner with no regard for their well-being. Initially skittish upon intake, which is understandable given the circumstances, they have both become friendly and affectionate with our staff & volunteers. We do not know if they are siblings, but they are not particularly bonded, and may be adopted separately. We do recommend a fenced backyard for these two, as they enjoy a good romp around our doggie exercise yard. Please stop in during our visiting hours (Mon, Wed-Fri 10am-3:30pm) to meet these handsome Chow-Chows, or you may call our front desk at 228-466-4516 to schedule an appointment. You may also call/text 985-285-2244 to arrange a meet-n-greet. These dudes are happy and loving, but have not yet been temperament tested with other dogs or cats. So, please bring your dog (s) and children along for the meeting with one or both dogs to ensure compatibility.
